

Hunting Season Not to Open Until November 6; Postponed by Governor

Order Issued Because of Great Danger of Forest Fires at Present.

TO WAIT FOR RAINFALL

By United Press.
HARRISBURG, Oct. 31.—Governor Pinchot issued a proclamation today postponing the opening of the hunting season until November 6 because of the danger of forest fires in the state. Unless rain falls before that date the season will not open as scheduled.

The small game season was to have started at sunrise Saturday morning. More than half a million sportsmen are expected to be in the field at that time. A week has been taken and was the result of an act passed in 1915 for preservation of the forests. The hunting season will thus be shortened by six days in view of the law setting November 15 as the day the season ends. The governor has the authority to curtail but no power to extend the hunting season.

Special orders were issued to game wardens, forest rangers and other state agents to assist in enforcing the proclamation. The radio will be used as a means of reaching the sportsmen at hunting lodges, and the proclamation will be broadcast from the State Police station here. The governor appeals to all hunters in the field to serve as volunteer fire wardens in case of forest fires. It was explained where the danger of forest fires had fallen prior to the date set by the governor for opening the season, the season will automatically open at that time.

"That part of my proclamation which opens hunting on any area upon which rain enough has fallen to make it safe from fire is common sense," the governor said. "My action is in the interest of the sportsman and I count on their vigorous cooperation."

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—"There will not be sufficient rainfall over the coming week-end to eliminate the danger of serious forest fires," Weather Forecaster Brotners said today, commenting on the order of Governor Pinchot, postponing the hunting season.

At the county treasurer's office in Westtown this morning it was said that more than 5,000 licenses had been issued to Fayette county hunters. The applications for licenses have been very heavy during the past several days, averaging between 600 and 700 per day. News of the postponement of the season has not generally been known until this afternoon and during the forenoon hours the number of applications was undiminished.

About two dozen women are among those who have licenses. While the postponement may be a keen disappointment to some who had completed plans for being away from their work tomorrow, most sportsmen generally recognize the wisdom of delaying the season.

Last night, on the radio, an appeal was made to hunters to be extremely careful when entering the woods, because of the dry condition. No rain has fallen since September 30, with the exception of a drizzle early this week.

SWINGING BRIDGE OVER YOUGH RIVER IS BEING REBUILT

The Trotter Water Company is replacing its swinging bridge across the Yough River, washed out by the big flood on March 30. The work has been under way some time and the structure will be rebuilt by the first of the year.

The new bridge will be similar to the one washed out and on the same site. The water company employees have been using skiffs to cross the river since the flood destroyed the bridge. The company has a plant west of the Yough river near the West Penn Power Company.

Building at Old Forge Wrecked by Dynamite Charge

By United Press.
SARANTON, Oct. 31.—A building on Wood street, Old Forge, was totally wrecked early today by two charges of dynamite. Sam and Ross Packett, who made their home there were outside of the building talking to some friends when the explosion shook the structure and was closely followed by a second.

According to James Bender, captain of police of Old Forge, three men were seen leaving the vicinity in an automobile shortly after the explosion, which left the building, a two-story frame structure in ruins. Captain Bender said the place was closed three weeks ago as a disorderly house.

WEST PENN EXPERTS LOCATE INTERFERENCE TO RADIO RECEPTION

The interference which has been rendering broadcast reception difficult to the radio fans in the South Side section was located yesterday by experts of the West Penn radio laboratory.

Investigation by J. C. McKinley and assistants, and the use of an interference receiver developed in the laboratory of the West Penn's experimental radio station 8XAP, the trouble was located on Arch street where a telephone wire was touching a West Penn feeder wire and the chain which supports a street light. When the wind blew the telephone wire moved in such manner that it touched both the 7,000 volt lighting circuit feeder and the chain, causing an arc. The telephone line was removed and tests at the station of Dr. I. W. Myers of South Arch street showed the interference to have been cleared.

The area affected by the trouble included about three-quarters of a mile square within which there are over 150 radio receiving installations and several amateur broadcasting stations. The radio department of the West Penn, which located the trouble, is ready at all times to offer its services for the mutual benefit of listeners-in and the power company.

Chicago Hearings On Campaign Fund Temporarily End

By United Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The Chicago phase of the Senate campaign "blush" fund hearing adjourned today subject to call, probably in Washington after election.

Nearly eight dozen witnesses were heard here including William M. Butler, chairman of the National Republican Committee, J. M. Nelson, chairman of the LaFollette-Wheeler movement, and others who played a part in the Republican and independent campaigns.

The Republican campaign fund to date totals approximately $3,750,000, W. V. Hodges, national treasurer, estimated. This is the gross figure and includes $750,000 returned to the various state organizations for use in the senatorial and congressional campaigns and other work.

Democrats have spent large sums in advertising that does not carry the signature of the Democratic National Committee, C. B. Baker, director of publicity for the Republican National Committee, testified. Baker exhibited a full page advertisement from a woman's magazine, which, he said, cost $7,500 per issue. Baker declared that all direct advertising by the Republican Committee carries the Republican signature.

Mob Wrecks Store And Residence at Town of Clinton

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—A grocery store was practically wrecked and a residence badly damaged shortly before midnight when a band of men visited Clinton, Findley township, near Imperial, and wrecked the store of J. W. Hood and the home of John Ayres.

Ayres opened fire on the men and fired four shots at the attackers as they hurled stones, clubs and other missiles at his home.

Every window in the store was broken and the door battered in, resulting in hundreds of dollars worth of damage. At the Ayres home over a dozen windows were broken before the attackers were driven off.

The presence of a negro laborer in the town, who was employed to wipe down the walls of the new United Presbyterian Church, is believed to have been responsible for the attack.

According to Head the negro was given lodging at the home of Ayres, which is owned by the grocer, until his work at the church was completed. Hood said he received veiled threats that he should not permit the negro to live in the same dwelling as white people.

Better Speech Week Programs Close at Dunbar Township Hi

The program at the Dunbar Township High School this morning concluded the observance of "Better Speech" week at that institution. The whole observance has been marked by unusual success. The teachers of the high school have made it clear that the real campaign against incorrect speech has just begun, proclaiming the observance week as a mere warm-up.

A debate, "Resolved that the Moderate Use of Slang is Justifiable," was held in the program this morning. Catherine Mahoney and Anna Bentz, seniors, were on the affirmative team while Grace Farley and William Goshald, juniors, were the negative speakers.

A mock trial in the court of "Doctor Speech" was presented yesterday morning at the high school. Anna Mader, the defendant, was arraigned on a charge of having used slang and numerous grammatical errors. The prosecution demanded the death penalty. Judge William Fike sentenced the culprit to write the correct form for each incorrect expression, 1,000 times.

Weather Man Is Favorable; Thousands of Mummies Will Be on Streets.

PARADE AT 8 O'CLOCK

With a price list aggregating nearly $400 in cash, the best kind of weather promised by the official forecast, and six musical organizations on hand to furnish lots of pep, everything is auspicious for the biggest Hallowe'en celebration ever staged in this city. Members of the New Haven Hose Company, conducting the affair, are jubilant over the prospects of making it the largest thing of the kind ever attempted.

Not a detail has been overlooked. The judges are named and will be located at the Carnegie Library to view the parade as it passes. To make sure of their choice the judges will then go to the West Side and see it for a second time. The route has been mapped out and police restrictions have been placed on automobile traffic and parking. The parade will move from the South Side at 8 o'clock.

The West Penn Company will run special street car service and hundreds of out of town mummies will be here to join in the celebration. They are extended a cordial invitation and will be given a warm reception.

The police force will be augmented this evening by the addition of the streets until the parade is over and it is pointed out that if those masked persons along the curbs would join with the marchers the pagant would be the greatest ever to pass through Connellsville streets. School children will form a big section of the parade and they will be under the watchful eyes of their principals and teachers. Red fire will not be permitted nor will anyone be allowed on horseback.

Publicity Provision Of Tax Law Will Be Attacked in Court

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The tax publicity provision of the new revenue law will be attacked as unconstitutional in a suit to be filed in a court here, according to information reaching officials today.

A Boston attorney, representing private interests is here, it is reported, with a petition shortly to be submitted, asking an injunction restraining Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair from continuing to permit public inspection of the tax records.

The suit would be based on the contention that the publicity provision violates individual rights guaranteed by the Constitution, attacking the law from a different angle than the suit filed and rejected in Cleveland yesterday. The Cleveland suit sought to prevent the internal revenue collector from making returns public on grounds that it was a "personal injury" to taxpayers.

BIG MAJORITIES FOR COOLIDGE IN PENNA., DELAWARE

Strong Drive to Capture Congressional Seats Now Held by Democrats.

FIGHT IN SIX DISTRICTS

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1924, by The Courier.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Pennsylvania and Delaware show every sign of giving Calvin Coolidge substantial majorities notwithstanding the effort of the LaFollette people to win the labor vote in both states. The Republican managers are talking of a record majority, the largest of any Republican state in the Union, but they admit their difficulty in arousing interest in a one-sided campaign. The get-out-the-vote movement is proceeding so well that the chances are Pennsylvania will poll an unusually large total.

The new voters will more than overcome the losses LaFollette for it appears that the regular Republicans have been the stay-at-homes in Pennsylvania. It takes time and money and organization to get out the vote and the Republicans have all three in Pennsylvania.

All this effort, however, is not directed merely at getting a large vote for the sake of making a record. It has back of it a distinct drive for congressional seats. There are six Democratic districts which the Republicans hope to capture. These chances depend entirely on what the LaFollette voters do for here as elsewhere in congressional campaigns, the Democratic nominees have openly sought LaFollette support and in many cases endorsements have not been difficult to get.

To pick up six seats in Pennsylvania would be a material gain for the Republican administration as Pennsylvania Republicans are usually conservative who vote with the administration. The outcome is not easy to forecast, however, because the labor vote in many districts is uncertain. The miners particularly have everybody guessing for while most of their leaders have endorsed LaFollette, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is supporting President Coolidge and here and there are some who are following the leadership of former Secretary William B. Wilson of the Department of Labor, champion of the Davis cause.

Governor Pinchot has concerned himself for the most part with his own situation, hoping to get a legislature that will assist him in carrying out his program. He came out unequivocally for the Republican national ticket at the meeting for Dawson held recently and he has since been working with the national organization in the hope of securing the election of Republicans throughout the state.

Just across the line in Delaware is another interesting situation for while Delaware's electoral vote seems certain to be cast for Coolidge, the senatorial race is by no means a certainty for the Republicans. Coleman Dupont, who won the Republican nomination after a hard struggle in the primaries, has not succeeded in erasing all the doubts inside the party; in fact, the Democratic hopes of electing James Tamm are based largely on the factional quarrels provoked by the primary contest of Dupont. The LaFollette group are also out of tune with each other, the Socialists, the single-taxers, and the out-and-out LaFollette men being agreed on the presidential race but not in union on the senatorial contest.

As usual the traditional troubles of the Dupont family are mixed up in the situation. One wing is backing General Dupont while some of the cousins are said to be the main support of Tamm. It would not be surprising to see a Democratic United States Senator from Delaware, though this will not occur if the Coolidge majority takes on the proportions of a landslide. That is Dupont's principal hope. In the last few days there has been a drift north everywhere in the East for Davis, but this is largely the vote that LaFollette took from the Democrats at the outset. It will have more of an influence on the congressional than the presidential contest.

Prison "Strikers" Capitulate; Don't Like Meagre Diet

By United Press.

MOONSVILLE, Va., Oct. 31.—After three days on a bread and water diet, 200 of the 500 convicts, who walked from the prison garment shop in a protest against working conditions capitulated today.

The men, anxious to get back on regular rations, promised Warden

Smith they would strictly observe the rules hereafter and were put back to work.

The 500 other "strikers" were still on a bread and water diet today as punishment for their howling and yelling. Shows of "we want eats" were heard most of Tuesday and Wednesday night and Smith said these men would "have to come to their senses" before they are put back to work.

Parent-Teacher Association of the Mount Pleasant Public Schools will

There was a good program, and very nice refreshments were served.

The Memorial Association is busy getting the last touches on for the memorial unveiling that will take place on Armistice Day. Invitations in this building or none going to school, can give their papers by call-will be sent to the home.

Wednesday was removed yesterday,
and put down in a different style. It

The Bible Still Is World's Best Seller

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The Bible continues to be the world's best seller, with an annual distribution of more than 7,000,000 copies issued by the American Bible Society. This was attested in a report submitted today to the biennial convention of the United

Lutheran Church in America.
Lutheran members of the Advisory Board of the Bible Society announced that the largest circulation of the Bible outside of the United States was in China which last year received more than 2,500,000 copies of the Great Book, an increase of more than 500,000 over the previous year.

Despite the heavy loss from the earthquake in Japan which destroyed a printing plant and forms of Japanese, Chinese and Slavonic Bibles, the distribution of the Book in Japan aggregated 343,000 copies, a gain of more than 50 per cent.

FURNITURE OPPORTUNITIES

It isn't just a matter of "happenstance" that we're able to offer the person who is thinking of investing in good furniture such a wonderful opportunity to get real quality at a low price! The fact that we make our purchases in great quantities—based on a volume business—is one reason for our low prices. A consistent policy of buying only the best, which represents the greatest value, is still another reason.

MEN cultivate a myth that women
mystify them. In one respect at present women do. It is about the petticoat.
Do women wear it? Or don't they? Only they can tell.
The trend in styles this year makes telling timely. At the risk of a curious male's discovering the answer by casting his eye down this page as carefully as he casts it over feminine fashions on feminine forms, the fact shall be recorded.
The slender, boyish figure that has been with us for several years is with us still.
Underneath it all is there to be found the petticoat, that fashion of an older day? The answer is "Yes."
It is found for several reasons.
The enforced allmance of the mod-ish creature who wears it is partly the answer for its kind. Somehow, as the sharp days of Fall and Winter draw upon them, women must find the warmth and comfort that make for health, without substituting a bulky fur for an outline.
Kilts, petticoats and princess slips of cotton and worsted, or at both materials mixed, slenderly designed, provide the solution.
Thus women usually conform to the dictates of fashion. While creating a contrary illusion they have retained the warm, distinctly feminine garment that insures their health and so their ability to "carry on."
The petticoat! You may not just know she wears it, but she does all the same!

CAVES SHED NEW LIGHT ON ANCIENT AMERICA

Small and Bones Discovered in New Mexico Resemble Those of Cliff Dwellers.

Washington, D. C.—That the huge, isolated caverns of New Mexico, recently rediscovered, were known to the early inhabitants of America is proved by a skull and other human bones, fragments of clothing, and wooden implements found by Dr. W. H. Leach, leader of the National Geographic society expedition which is exploring the caves. The material had just been examined by experts. They find that the skull differs from that of a Pueblo Indian and resembles the skulls of the Cliff Dwellers. The bones were identified as those of a man and a woman.

The matter from the caves consists of well-woven strings and has the appearance of being of Indian manufacture.

The specialists who examined the fragments point out that the occurrence of such material in the caverns does not prove that they were inhabited, since it was customary, even with some nomadic peoples, to lay away the dead in caves. Such natural shelters also were used by early man as temporary camping places.

The National Geographic society, through the expedition led by Doctor Leach, is mapping and photographing the caverns and seeking for extraneous that will make them accessible to visitors. President Coolidge several months ago set aside the region containing the caves as the Carlsbad Caverns National monument.

Turks Agitate Sale

of Caliph's Treasures

Constantinople.—The question of what is to be done with the treasures of the caliph is occupying front-page space in all Turkish newspapers. These treasures contain some of the most valuable items in existence.

One group of papers demands that the treasure be sold at international auction, so that the money may be made available for reconstructing the country and for relieving distress among the poor.

Until 1918, the treasure was kept in the palace of Topkapu. After the recent regime succeeded to power it was brought to the mosque of Ahmed Pasha at Angora. The treasure includes the remains and works of art collected by the sultans and caliphs through centuries. There are necklaces of pearls and diamonds, medallions of rubies and emeralds, chains of pearls of priceless value, diadems and crowns of precious stones, goblets and cups of gold and silver, swords and daggers and pistols set with jewels, and the famous medals of the sultans with diamonds and other precious stones.

Price of Peace

Daily—How do you know the Websters have made it up again, don't you? Oh, I say, Mr. Webster looking over several new cars today—Bryar Stories.

A Billion Six Hundred Thousand For New Equipment

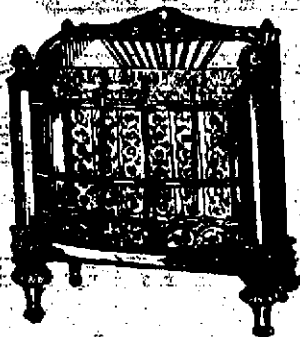

The Car Service Division of the American Railway Association announced that in the first nine months of this year, 130,727 new freight cars and 1,827 new locomotives were installed in service on Class One railroads; and that 48,702 freight cars and 855 locomotives were still on order.

This means that in the three years since 1921, the railroads have bought 454,684 new freight cars and 73,443 new locomotives. As the average price of a freight car is about $2,250, the freight car purchases mean an investment of more than $1,000,000,000.

Of new capital. The average price of new locomotives is about $60,000 each, so that the locomotive investment is more than $300,000,000. During these same three years the railroads also bought and installed approximately 5,000 all-steel passenger-train cars. These cars average about $30,000 a piece and represent an investment of about $150,000,000. Altogether, therefore, during these three years the railroads have invested more than $1,600,000,000 in new cars and locomotives.

To Resume River Steel Shipments. Resumption of big river shipments of finished steel products by manufacturers in the Pittsburgh district to southern ports will take place within the next three or four weeks, providing the river stages will permit.

Eat Again Like a Hungry Boy

You can remember when you were a boy how easily you gained the most time to come and how you enjoyed the good things your mother set before you. You were young and strong and your digestive organs were functioning properly.

But since then you have overworked your digestive organs. You can quickly eliminate your trouble, tone up the digestive and eliminative organs, and bring back the lost appetite of boyhood.

Players and Rooters Primed For Big Event Tomorrow; Be Out and Yell, Is The Slogan

"Little Cokers" Will Do Their Stuff to Best of Ability on Gridiron.

WILL PARADE TO FIELD

With community enthusiasm running high in favor of the Connellsville High School football team, one of the biggest crowds of the season is expected at Fayette Field tomorrow afternoon to witness the annual clash with Washington High.

Whether the "Little Cokers" win or lose they will find the home fans with them. It is acknowledged that the team does not have the scoring strength it should have but this will not keep down the rooting. A game like that played against Jeannette High will result in a tremendously low score and defeat will not even be acknowledged by the team until the visitors have earned sufficient touchdowns to put them in the lead. And that, any time the players, is just what they are not going to do.

Washington will find Connellsville's biggest boys lined up against it. If brown will not stop the Blue and Black, then Coach Leroy will send in his young "tiger-cats," kids who tackle and claw and fight until they have not energy enough left to raise an arm.

Saturday will be a big day for the Cokers' original tackles, Van Marsteg and Crum, both in the 180 pound class, to "come through" and prove their worth. If these boys will only charge, with the weight they have behind them, Washington will feel the effect, and two lads wearing Orange and Black jerseys will find themselves redoubled in the eyes of fans, especially Marlett, who has been consistently criticized. Even one will pull for the "big game" Saturday, but he must play the game and show his "stuff."

The judges of the cartoons and slogans are going to have a big job on their hands. There was a fresh flood of these "planned" in windows in the business district yesterday, and some of them are very worthwhile. The Rotary boys and Elk members who are backing the movement to revive Connellsville from its lethargy, are very well pleased with the results being obtained. At 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon a parade, headed by the Elks' Band, will leave the High School building. The committee says it is up to the school students, boys and girls alike, to set the pace and show the other fans the way to the ball field. The entire student body is requested to meet at the building before the hour as its part of the endeavor to get Connellsville awakened. Another awakening process in the hands of the student body is use of their voices while on the way to the ball park. "Make it count like a victory instead of a funeral," suggested one person this morning.

Connellsville fans who go to Fayette Field tomorrow will be there to back their team to the finish, win or lose. Washington is not a world beater and has not played a heavy schedule this season. The Cokers showed their best defense against Jeannette—seemingly the leading contender for the Syracuse Cup in Western Pennsylvania. If the team can once more rise to such heights, tackle low and savage, follow the ball at all times, it may come through on top. Willard is recovered from his sore leg. He got late soreness last week. "Now" Stillwagon has a foot hurt, however, and it is uncertain whether he will be able to start. Johnson, the colored end, is still out and "Speedy" Lowe may start. Keyed up to the highest pitch by the community's sudden interest in them, the local eleven will do its best, defeated or not.

When the parade moves off, those in automobiles are requested to fall in behind. W. O. Adrian has been named grand marshal and he will have an efficient corps of assistants. Many persons have said that as the team always walks to the field, it would be interesting to see the outthrusting behind the band.

Young Lady of West Side Writes Timely Poem on Football

Even the poets of the city are being inspired to give expression of their interest in the popular autumn game which the young men of Connellsville High School will exemplify to the satisfaction of their friends and fans generally when they meet Washington High on Fayette Field tomorrow afternoon.

The following exceedingly clever lines by Miss Lillian McCahan, 418 South Eighth street, West Side, were not written solely with tomorrow's contest in view, but they so aptly express the spirit of football as it is played by the C. H. S. team that publication at this time is regarded as most timely and appropriate.

FOOTBALL DAYS.

The far off hills are busy,
Sons of smoky like you know,
And every tree is sporting
A red or golden glow,
I wonder why I'm happy?
Why I feel so very gay?
And then I just remember—
Of course, this is football day.

The grassy field within me
Now is beating hot and high,
I'd like to twang a guitar
Out beneath an open sky,
But instead I'll drive blithely,
With a dash of color gay,
And follow the crowd gleefully
To the game on football day.

The shouting of the plunkin'
Is like music to my ears,
While I stand on the sidelines
And help give the boys a cheer,
Who on the field of glory,
All lined up in grim array,
Fight bravely for a victory
For their team on football day.

I like to watch their tactics
When they strive hard for a goal,
To feel the team shouting
That comes in each fighting goal,
For out upon the gridiron,
When though win or lose they may,
Proves its worth on football day.

America, they tell us,
Your ideals no longer seem,
That you lack the true manhood
Of the pioneer days of yore,
But decency and honor
Never shall forsake your name,
While you have clear eyed athletes
Playing in a clean football game.

The strong Gallagher Athletic Club grid team defeated the South Connellsville Junior squad last evening at Mays field in the second game of the season for the former team. The final score was 6-0. Although playing a stronger outfit, the Gallagher contingent battled like demons and finished ahead.

Local Golfers Lose To Mill Towners in "Dinner" Tournament

The Connellsville golfers played host to the Scottsdale players yesterday at the Pleasant Valley Country Club, after being defeated by the Mill Towners in a "dinner" contest. The losers were to banquet the winners and the honor was bestowed upon the local contingent.

Scottsdale obtained revenge for its defeat sometime ago. A third and decisive torguey will be staged next week if weather conditions permit.

CHAPTER X.

From that day Andrew's health began to mend with tremendous rapidity. Trevor never tired of watching her never ceased to wonder at a recovery so rapid that its daily transitions were visible. It reminded him of one of the marvels of his boyhood. An old man had said to him one day, "I hear the corn growing, sonny?" and he laughed, whereupon the granddaddy had taken him by one ear and marched him to the nearest furrow. "Pick out a stalk and watch it, you little egg-sucker," he commanded. "See it grow, if you can't hear."

Andrew was like that; she was unfurling as though in the morning of a new youth. Never had her eyes been brighter, never her cheeks so quick to pink with fire. Incidentally, she was full of a devil of mischievous remonstrant innuendo.

"It's all a great joke now, young lady," Trevor would defend himself. "But if you'd seen what I have of persistent malaria, you'd keep grave for a year. I've seen three Swahilis that had nourished mosquitoes from their youth up, fall like dogs, one after another, within a mile and a half of an infected camp and the best of them went stone blind for a month."

"Did you nurse them, White Man? Did you see them through?"

These were the questions that drove him nearest to desperation but the gleam in the eyes above the demure mouth from which they issued invariably warned him of the trap in time. He was on his guard; he knew that there were things between him and Andrew that speak would turn into gnarly skeletons walking by day and which only constant silence could atone. But so deep had grown his sympathies that even in this he understood her. It was not that she was perverse, but that her pride demanded a constant test of his loyalty to her other self—that internal self that had lain bare, revealed and helpless in his arms.

About those things which might have aroused a legitimate curiosity, she asked few questions. Without a word of inquiry she saw him despatch twelve picked men on some mysterious mission where intricate and important necessitated a preliminary palaver of an hour's duration. Equally silent she watched his detailed preparations of a well-appointed safari. Tents were brunched and set to air; coats and mattresses put out for a sun-bath; provisions of all sorts packed in one-load cases; water boiled, filtered and hung in canvas canteens. Only a few days before, just such signs as these had made her heart heavy with unanswerable questionings, but her illness had changed all that. The successive moments of the throbbing present each in its turn filled her whole horizon.

She knew instinctively that he had something big up his sleeve, and that he would shake it out on the slightest provocation. She also had a long term eye, and had no difficulty in recalling his exact boast as to what he would do when she was well. He was going to take her in free fight. She was well now, she reflected; she had never felt better in her life, and if there was one thing she hungered for more than another, it was the promised combat.

There is no telling how long Andrew's innate stubbornness would have held out, nor at what point Trevor's exasperation would have driven him for their wordless contest was interrupted by an event which he had both foreseen and feared. They were sitting at a table after dinner on a cloudless night, brilliant under a full moon when a far-away sound came to disturb their purposeful silence. Trevor straightened in his chair and leaned forward, his whole body tense in the effort of listening. It came again, a ghost of a sound that gradually assumed substance and rhythmic form until after five long minutes it was recognizable as the continued rumble of an African river churning.

Instantly Trevor was on his feet. He issued orders to Butch, who immediately began to clear the table and eliminate every item of furniture that would indicate a dual occupancy of the white portion of the camp. They had dressed that night for dinner, not as a celebration or any special event, but because they were both bored with too much time on their hands. Trevor now excused himself to Andrew and withdrew to his room. In a few minutes he reappeared garbed in his roughest khaki shirt and trousers. His face was grave as he advanced on Andrew with a nod toward her hut. "MacCoster will be here in half an hour," he stated. "I ask you to go to your room, close and bar both doors and stay there until I call you."

Without waiting for her comment, he turned and left her. She sat on with narrowed eyes until she had finished her cigarette, and then, with a glance around to see if Trevor were watching, she arose and walked slowly across the open court of the camp. In her breast was a great rebellion at the curt manner in which he had made his request, but she had to admit to herself that no other form of address, coming from him, could have impressed her so deeply moved her so quickly to her room. She went to her room, closed the front door but did not bar it; chose a book and sat down to make a pretense of reading. The sound of the churning tumbled near and then wavered afar according to the bends of the river, but in spite of this variation the sum of its volume swelled steadily in an anxious approach until it died quite suddenly at the best landing. There was a distant rattle of a dozen puntling-poles dropped across the thwarts, a spoken word or two that carried marvelously across the still night, and then a long silence suddenly shattered by a bellowing voice: "Bully! Show your port and star-board lights!—you. How in the b— do you think I'll make the channel?"

Andrew rose quickly and laid her ear to a crack in the door. Her pulse was beating fast, but she was smiling. She heard Trevor come out and presently she heard him speak. His voice was almost unrecognizable, it was so cold and so incisive, like sharpened steel. In strange incongruity, the words he let fall were like drops of molten metal.

"Hello, MacCoster, you dirty, drunk-on-brute! What's your price to go away from here tonight? I can offer you a case of Bols and all the better dogs in the canal to see you off."

The words and their manner astounded Andrew; for a moment it seemed to her that these two men must be joking. Then she felt the impact of an undercurrent of malice such as she had never in her life imagined, much less encountered. She quivered to the thought that here was Trevor absolutely without gloves at last, every word an intentionally naked blow.

"Trevor," said MacCoster in an oily voice that was strangely softened and indelicately ingratiating. "I like you. I can't help liking you; you're so d—unbitchal. Not a whisper about a sanguinary fatted calf. You go right to my heart with a case of gin. I accept; bring it out."

"Not," said Trevor. "I'll send it up. I'll have it waiting for you by the time you get back if you don't rot and fall apart on the way."

"There you go," said MacCoster, pleasantly, "always cheerful, warm welcome on your tongue." Then, with a change that was like a thunder-clap: "Send it up, you d—unbitchal bastard! Why the b— haven't you sent my music box?"

Andrew pressed her hands, her face and her whole body against the door. She was trembling slightly, but she was not frightened, her intelligence was too busy. It had leaped to an understanding of Trevor's part in what was going on outside. She forgot that she had ever thought it a mere battle of tongues. She could imagine this man, MacCoster, as a mountain of brawn and slow against which Trevor was deliberately opposing all the moral weight of the old fighting slogan, "Bully a bully!"

More than that, she could now feel that the suppressed hatred she had guessed at their words had come boldly into the open and that it was in a sense labored and forced only because its intensity was beyond actual expression. These men were stripped to almost unbelievable nakedness—ruder and broader in leaping, thrusting mightily, for heart's blood and nothing less. In comparison with her own little struggle with Trevor, the encounter assumed the proportions of a meeting of elements.

"I didn't send it," said Trevor softly. "Because I didn't want to remind myself you were still unbitchal. Besides, it looks so clean—"

"I know," interrupted MacCoster. "Once more his astonishingly flexible voice changed its tone to one of unfeigned calm. "I can understand, of course," he remarked conversationally, "your dislike the idea of carnage in conjunction with the virgin polish of a mahogany box. Well, let's have a look at the thing."

"I don't remember having seen you so sober before," said Trevor, in the same easy tone and from his sound she knew he had turned toward his room.

"Enforced, I can assure you," replied MacCoster. "Been strapped on the wagon by lack of the news—"

The sound of his voice was cut short by the closing of Trevor's door. Andrew opened her own just a crack, and looked out. In the very center of the circular court squinted in

It Was the Aria From Faust.

A flag a dozen half-naked boat-boys their torments were still glowing in the moonlight from the sweat of their labor. They all seemed dull of face but mighty of muscle. None not one of Trevor's people was in sight—a very surprising fact, for the Africans love a gossip with the stranger with in his sails.

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"BORDER INTRIGUE" — With Franklyn Farnum in the stellar role opened today at the Paramount as a two day attraction.

The story and setting is unique in so far as the locale of the last half of the story is concerned being laid in Sierra Blanca Lower California, where Spanish customs and costumes still prevail to a very large degree in order to secure exactness of detail as to locality and construction of buildings, J. P. McGowan the director transported the entire cast to San Juan Capistrano where the world-famed Capistrano mission is located and where the Governor General of Lower California under the Spanish regime had his mansion.

The types in the photoplay "Border Intrigue" were picked largely because of their Spanish cast of features and each was costumed in the apparel of Spain.

The action of the story shifts from a ranch located in the states then to the Mexican boundary and across the border. Replete with high spots of dramatic interest in addition to the unique Spanish background.

The program also includes a chapter of "Into the Net."

The Soisson

"THE GIRL IN THE LIMOUSINE" — The feature picture today and Saturday at the Soisson, is a First National picture and is the first big feature length comedy in which Larry Semon has appeared.

"The Girl in the Limousine" is claimed to be the kind of a picture that will make anyone laugh in the hottest weather. The story was first a stage play in New York and has since toured the country. It was written by Wilson Collier and Avery Hopwood and presented by Al Woods about six years ago on Broadway where it enjoyed success for two solid years—a record seldom equaled in the New York dramatic world.

Semon's supporting cast in this picture consists of Charlie Murray who has himself been starred in a series of comedies and who is one of the most popular and best known of all screen comedians and Claire Adams a dramatic actress who makes her debut in comedy with phenomenal success.

The Orpheum

"THE TROUBLE SHOOTER" — Featuring Tom Mix and his horse Tony, provides splendid entertainment today and tomorrow at the Orpheum.

Picture fans thought they had seen Tom Mix in about every role possible to give him but he comes out in a new one in "The Trouble Shooter." Mix plays the part of a western trouble shooter, for a big power company which strings wires through the wild mountain country to link civilization.

He has the support of one of the finest casts ever assembled for him. Kathleen Key has the leading feminine role, while other well-known performers are Earl Fox, J. Connelley Davis, Howard Truitt, Frank Currier, Mike Donlin, formerly noted as a professional ball player, Dolores Rouss, Charles McGinnis and Al Freeman. John Conway was the director and he made a fine job of it.

Natural scenery, effective plot, a taut story and clever acting combine to present the western western star to the best advantage.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday "The Bedroom Window" will be shown.

Lutherans Want Better Churches

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Leaders of the Lutheran Church in America have undertaken a campaign to induce congregations to build better churches. To that end they have appointed a Committee on Church Architecture, charged with the duty of guiding and, to an extent, supervising the erection of churches. In its report to the convention of the Lutheran Church in America, submitted today, the committee states:

Many congregations, particularly in the smaller cities, are suffering from the lack of a thoroughly competent church architect. They believe that the work can be done by any general architect or, if the building is to be small, even a draftsman or builder will supply them with satisfactory plans.

Unless one of these be employed congregations cannot expect to erect buildings of architectural merit and churchly character. The employment of a building committee, even though it has men of architectural training has a specious evil. These draftsmen are rarely qualified to draft church buildings and do not understand the first principles of good church design.

The money of our people is being mis-spent and the opportunity of the church for service and influence is being lost by the very general erection of common-place, characterless structures designed by men unqualified to do this special work.

MEYERSDALE, Oct. 31.—Mrs. A. E. Javens of Salisbury entertained the Wednesday Afternoon Card Club at the Colonial Hotel here yesterday.

Confluence

CONFLUENCE, Oct. 31.—Beautiful fall weather prevails here again after a few days of wet and cloudiness. A W. H. Hunsman of Mansfield, Pa., the contractor for four miles of state road extending from the end of Oden street here on through to Harpersville, is here now making arrangements to start work on the grading.

Confession

Charles Blais has returned to his work in Chicago after several weeks' vacation here with his mother, Mrs. Lillian Blais. George Cramer of Uxama was visiting friends and transacting business in town yesterday. Mrs. David Matthews was among the visitors to Connellsville yesterday.

Work on the state road between here and Uxama is going steadily forward at this season.
